the and Her Husband Do Not Agree, and the Has Brought an Action for a Separa-tion, Her Chief Orlevance, it Appears, Being an Aversion to Her Father-in-Law, Florence A. Johnson, an exceptionally tall woman, in a blue tallor-made gown, testified before Justice O'Brien of the Supreme Court vesterday afternoon in her action for a separation from Wilmot Johnson, Jr., of the Union and several other Slubs. It appeared that each has means yielding an income of something over $4,000 a year.

They were married in October, 1881, and have not lived together since June. 1892. They have two daughters. Frances, 9 years old, and Natalle, 5 years, and affection for the children has kept the parents from a complete es-trangement. Mr. Johnson denies the abandonment alleged, and asks that the action be dis-

In answer to a question of her counsel, W. H. Arsoux, she said she was willing to go back to her husband. She said she had given her property into her husband's charge after marriage. It was one-half of her mother's estate. She did not know if it was about $102,000. She knew its income was about $4,000 a year. She has had charge of it since August, 1882. rancis L. Johnson, inther or the derendant, a venerable-looking man of 72, sat beside his son.

Wilmot Johnson testified that he has been going regularly to Short Hills to see the children. When asked what the conduct of his wife was on these visits, he said:

"We avoid each other."

For a brief period that his wife lived at Winsted, Conn. just before she wentro Short Hills. Mr. Johnson said he wrots to the governess to have him a room ready, as he was going to visit the children.

"Ind you see your wife?" he was asked.

"No. She had gone away before I arrived."

He was asked on cross-examination if he had not written for a separate room. He didn't think he had, because his wife had refused to occupy the same room with him. He admitted that in announcing to the governess a visit he was about to make to Short Hills he had said he did not care to see his wife.

Mr. Johnson said the net income of the estate he received from his mother is $4.200 a year. He had promised his mother that he would provide for his father, who has no estate, and he has been lotting his father have the income of $157 Sixth avenue, netting $2,200 a year.

Justice O'Brien reserved decision.

MAMANI, THE GIANT, IS DEAD.

The Bellevue Doctors Think Homesickness Had Much to Do with His Taking Of. José Santos Mamani, the Peruvian giant, died at Bellevue Hospital vesterday morning. The autopsy showed that he had nephritis. gastritis, and that his lungs were affected. The Bellevue physicians, however, said that these ailments did not fully account for they added to them homesickness.

Mamani came to this country with sixteen Bolivians to go to the World's Fair as an exhibit of what sort of men could be found in South America. He said he was 9 feet tall. When his body was measured at the Morgue yesterday it was found to be 6 feet 9% inch in length, and its weight was 350 pounds. Manani and the Bolivians had a hard time of it. They exhibited themselves in Philadelphia with little success, and then started to walked most of the distance to New York. They walked most of the distance to New Brunswick, and then Miss Emma C. wick, and then Miss Emma C. Sickles found them.

Miss Sickles had a contract with the manager of the Press Club Fair to furnish twelve borth American Indiana for $500. She was unable to get her Indiana. When she heard of the stranded Bolivians at New Brunswick she went down and brought them to New York. They were housed in the Grand Central Palace and accepted by the managers of the fair in place of the North American Indiana. The hard tramp and the exposure was too much for the giant. He became sick on Sanday.

Sunday.

Dr. de Villa went to Bellevue on Tuesday and asked that an ambulance be sent for the giant. This request was refused on the ground that Manani was a foreigner. The giant's condition was such on Thursday that after some urging Bellevue sent an ambulance. The Bolivians did not understand why he should be taken away. They held a big pow-wew when he had gone, and it was not until the Monawk Indian woman Viroqua had made a speech to them through the interpreter that they subsided.

Miss Sickies is indigmant because the physicians at Believue had not permitted some of Bamanis friends to see him. There was no one with him who could understand his language," she said last night, "and perhaps if liste had been his life might have been saved, when an interpreter called at the hospitattoday the physicians told him that he could not sea Mamani, and an hour later Mamani died, without a person near him who could undersland time.

sland him."

Mamani was 30 years old, a farmer, and he leaves a wife and five children in Peru. The liolivians did not know of the giant's death last night. One of them explained to a reporter that the giant was sick. He reached as high as he could to indicate the giant. Then he laid his head over on his hand. His eyes filled with tears and then he asked for a cigarotte. eigarette.

MR. DU PONT'S FRIENDS MISTARE. They Recognize It Now, and Publish the Details of His Death.

LOUISVILLE, May 19.- The Du Pont scandal has assumed such proportions that the rela-tives and friends have announced that they will make a clean breast of the whole affair. To-night affidavita will be furnished by Dr. Mc-Dermott, who was called to see the dead man by the undertaker who embalmed the body, by Chief of Police Taylor, and by everybody else connected with the case. These will be given to the local newspapers, which have heretofore denied and ignored the scandal. This was done out of consideration for the memory of a great public bene factor, as Mr. Du Pont was, and because his brother, Biderman Du Pont, is owner of the Louisville Commercial. All are satisfied that it and place of death a secret. It is now certain that the millionaire was not murdered.

He was on the streets on Tuesday morning till after 1 o'clock. He went to the German bank soon after it was opened and drew out $100, which he intended for Mrs. Payne. At what hour he went to that woman's house is not known, except from her statement. She had sent for him for help, as she had often and complained of being very sick and cold. She sent him up stairs to her room, where there was a fire. Following in a few moments. she found him with his collar and cravat off she found him with his collar and cravat off and lying back in an easy chair apparently dying. She sent for Dr. McDermott, whom she knew well. Here Dr. McDermott takes up that thread of the story.

In his affidavit he says he found Mr. Du Pont in extremis, and that he died fifteen minutes after the doctor's arrival. Death was caused by heart failure, brought on by a congestive chill, or elso the too frequent use of tobacco. Dr. McDermott admits that the very steps he took to conceal the circumstances of Mr. Du Pont's death aroused suspicion.

He sent at once for an undertaker, fearing, he said, that the body would stiffen and could not be placed in a coffin if there was any delay until nightfall. As soon as it could be placed in the coffin the corpse was removed to the Du Pont mansion in Central Park. This was done in broad daylight, and of course attracted the notice of everybody in the noighborhood.

SAY SHE WAS NOT ILL-TREATED.

Old Mrs. Adair's 2d, 3d, 4th, 5th, 6th, 7th, 8th, 9th, 10th, and 11th Ribs Broken. When Mrs. Martha Emily Adair died in her month ago, the body was removed to the house of her married daughter, Mrs. Pidgeon, at 518 Greene avenue, Brooklyn. The asylum authorities gave the cause of death as resthemia, or senile exhaustion. When Undertaker Hughes of York and Jay streets propared the body for burial he found many bruises everywhere, and he told the relatives. Several of them were of the opinion that death was due to violence. Coroner Creamer was notified, and he gave directions for an autopsy. and set the inquest down for last night in the Gates Avenue Police Court. The asylum audenied in the most emphatic terms that Mrs. They said she had been a restless patient during the two years that she had been there, and, being so old, everything she touched left a bruise on her body. Hospital Superintendent Sylvester said that Mrs. Adair had had he best treatment a patient could get, and was constantly under the care of two trained nurses. He said the steries of violence were too contemptible even to notice.

For the inquest last night Coroner Creamer subcorased several asylum attaches and relatives of Mrs. Adair. Dr. Frank J. Freel, autopsy physician to Coroner Creamer, and Dr. George Clayland, who made the autopsy on April 30, submitted their report. They said they found dark discolorations over the whole left breast and chest and part of the right: also over the outer surface of the left forearm, with an abrasion: a bruise on the chin, one on the left side of the lower jaw, one on the upper part of the left arm: marked discoloration of the left fores which had begun to suppurate. There were several scratches on the right knee, two below the left knee, one on the left lex, two on the left foot, several on the left foot several on the left foot several on the left fore structure. which had begun to suppurate. There were two abrasions on the right knee, two below the left knee, one on the left leg, two on the toes of the right foot, several on the left foot, also one on the fourth finger of the right hand, and one on the forehead. There was fracture also of the second, third, fourth, fifth, sixth, seventh, eighth, ninth, tenth, and eleventh rits on the right side. The cause of death, they said, was fracture of the ribs and shock. Superintendent Sylvester and Dr. Phillips testified last night that the woman was never leadly treated. Helen kiley and Mary Downing, nurses, testified that Mrs. Adair sustained her injuries by falling out of bed.

Relatives of Mrs. Adair testified that she had frequently told them that she was roughly handled in the asylum. Drs. Freel and Clayland, after the reading of their report, testified that in their opinion the woman could never have received the wounds that were found upon her by falling. They said that somebody must have ill-used her.

The verdict of the jury was that Mrs. Adair came to her death from injuries she received in the Flatbush Insane Asylum, and that there was culpable negligence on the part of the officials, and especially in giving a wrong certificate of death.

The time intervening he spent in investigating the Post Office mud die with the aid of his stenographer. The dle with the aid of his stenographer. The evidence was taken privately. He didn't go into the alleged force employed by Donham, the Democratic Postmaster, in procuring an entrance into the office, or into the alleged insubordination of the Republican employees. These, he said were subjects for the Post Office Department. All he was concerned in was any possible violation of the civil service rules by the romoval of Republican employees. He took the evidence of a dozen well-known men, both Democrats and Republicans, as to the facts in the muddle.

A Novel Election Contest Spoiled.

The campaign was progressing election. The campaign was progressing satisfactorily when, to everybody's surprise, Richey, the Democratic candidate, withdrew from the contest. He explains this action in an open letter to Mr. Broaddus, whom he charges with having stated that he had in his possession letters written by Richey, which if published would blast his name. Mr. Richey demands that the letters be published. He has withdrawn from the Methodist church, of which he is a prominent member, and says there will be trouble if the letters are not published.

I desire also to take this occasion to say that I am no less convinced of the honesty, integrity, and purity of the motives of the Board of Managers. Notwithstanding, however, the excellence of the intentions manifested, I consider the resolution of Dec. 24 a grave error, and I consider the adjustment as particularly unfortunate at the present juncture, involving as it does a principle, the contrary of which ought to have been acted upon. For at no time so much as at the present did it seem to me imperative that the security holders of the Reading Railroad should receive assurance that not only those who administer its funds will be held to the strictest accountability, but also that no compromise would ever be made which should involve the acceptance by the company of any liability not created for the purpose within the scope of its charter or without the full sanction of the Board of Managers acting, net by means of desultory private conversation, but by resolutions properly adopted. This assurance is, in my estimation, of even greater importance than the adoption of any plan of rehabilitation, however admiraadopted. SUICIDE OF C. S. ROGERS.

The President of the Northwestern Cordage Company Kills Himself at St. Paul. St. Paul, May 12.-Charles S. Rogers, President of the Northwestern Cordage Company and silent member of the firm of Crane & Orday, milling supplies, committed suicide this afternoon by jumping off the Smith avenue bridge into the Mississippi River, 125 feet

About 2 o'clock J. M. Karl was crossing the high bridge, when a man drove up and stopped him. "How high do you think the bridge is?" inquired the man.

"I don't know," responded Karl, and the two began talking about things in general. Karl is an electrician, and the man said he wanted to have some bells put in his house wanted to have some cells put in his house.

Karl finally handed the man his card and asked what his name was.

"My name is liogers," replied the man. "I wish you would take my buggy and horse home."

"My name is liogers," replied the man. "I wish you would take my buggy and horse home.

"Where to?" inquired Karl, surprised.
Rogers handed him a slip of paper on which was written, C. S. Rogers, 410 Grove street. He sliso handed him a letter addressed to Charles S. Rogers, President Northweatern Cordage Company, from the St. Paul Title, Trust and Insurance Company.
Rogers then got out of the buggy, and without a moment's waiting stepped to the railing and began climbing over. Karl rushed at him and struggled as well as he was able, but Rogers them him off. and a moment later dashed headforemost over the railing. Karl says that the body remained buried under the water for over a minute, and then rose and sunk once or twice, after which he did not see it. The body has not heen found.

Mr. Rogers was one of the best-known business men in St. Paul, having been President of the St. Paul Jobbers' Union. He had always been rated very high financially. Every indication points to the fact that the suicide was caused by mental aberration. His wife and children had not observed anything wrong about his actions, and his friends are unable to account for his act. Mr. Rogers was born at Plymouth, N. H., and was 58 years old. He was a son of Nathaniel Parker Rogers, who was prominent in the abolition movement.

John Naylor Finds Two Friends Visiting With His Wife. ELIZABETH. May 19.-John Naylor, sometimes called Texas Jack, an Elizabeth expressman, had an encounter last night with a real estate agent and an insurance agent of this city, whom he found in his house in Morris avenue making a visit to his wife and a female friend of hers. Naylor lost no time in pitching into the visitors, one of whom he pitching into the visitors, one of whom he tossed bareheaded through the door and down the stoop, while the other, the insurance man, escaped by jumping through a rear window and scaling a fence.

The man, who lost his hat, ran nearly a block and sought refuge in Alfred Despies's saloon near the depot, where he borrowed a hat. Naylor's wife and her friend shricked as oloudly while the scrimmage was going on that they scared the girls working in Laggren's laundry next door. "Ernant" and "Cavalleria Rusticana"

Manager Stanton played what proved to be a fine drawing card last night in the production of "Cavalleria Rustleana" by the Hinrich Opera Company & the Grand Opera House. The largest audience of the season thus far crowded to hear Mascagni's work.

The opera was preceded by the third act of "Ernani." which afforded Signor Montegriffo and Mme. Solma Koert-Kronold their first opportunity to appear during the present prosperous engagement. Signor Montegriffo was Evana, and Mme. Kronold was Evana, the cast being further strengthened by Signor Campanari and W. H. Clarke. The finale received a curtain call and had to be repeated.

The cast of Cavalleria was: Mme. Kronold. Sanduzza; Katherine Fleming. Lola; Signor Montegriffo. Farrula; Signor Campanari, Afto. and Marie Synnenberg. Lucia. Mme. Kronold. who was the original Sanduzza in this city, received a flattering welcome, and flowers were passed to her after her duet with Campanari, who proved the greatest favorite in the cast, his rich baritone voice having apparently completely captured the hearts of the big audience. "Ernani." which afforded Signor Montegriffo

WILL ATTACK ITS CONVEYANCES. Northwestern Guaranty Loan Association's

MINNEAPOLIS, May 19.-The matter of appointing a receiver for the Northwestern Guaranty Loan Association comes up to-morrow in the District Court for final settlement. There is no doubt that a receiver will be appointed. There is a prospect that a big suit vill grow out of the matter. A few days ago the company conveyed its magnificent building to the Northwestern

Building Association, which act is said to have taken it out of the assets of the defunct comany. With the lot it is valued at nearly pany. With the lot it is valued at hearly $2,000,000.

It is said that the creditors will commence a suit to set this conveyance aside on the ground of fraud. Yesterday the company gave a bill of sale of its extensive law library and its costly restaurant. All these conveyances have been made since the company practically suspended business, and no doubt will be attacked. It is rumored that a number of country banks are loaded up with the debentures of the company, and that some of them may have to close their doors in consequence. A bank at Zumbrota has already failed from this cause.

REORGANIZATION IN HUDSON COUNTY

Supplant a Democratic Boss,

Since the recent defeats the Democrats in popular demand among the rank and file of the party for a reorganization. The leaders acknowledged the justice of the demand and decided to yield to it. Numerous plans have been suggested and discussed. Finally a committee was appointed to prepare a plan and the result of its labors was submitted to the Gonerai Committee at a meeting held last night in the headquarters in Jersey City. It was laid over for a month. It provides that the supremeeontrol shall be vested in a body of forty persona to be called the Democratic Central Organization of Hudson County. Twenty-eight of these shall not be members of the County Committee or of the District Committees, and six of them shall be appointed at large. The owners of this central body are to be such as are supposed to belong to a boss and to an Executive Committee. The Chairman of the County Committee and the Chairman of the Executive Committee shall each appoint one member of the central body for each Assembly district. This central body is to organize by July 30. the result of its labors was submitted to the

The Nihilists in Faris threaten to make trouble unless the papers of their comrade, Lieturski, who recently committed suicide, are delivered to his relatives at once. Most of the papers found among Lieturski's effects were marked "To be destroyed." They were seized by officers of the law, and are now demanded by the Russian Consul-General by virtue of the Convention of 1853. The relatives have brought suit to recover the papers, and say they will obtain them at any cost.

No Cholers, Say the People of Hamburg The Hamburg-American line's agent in this city. Mr. Emil L. Boas, received yesterday from Hamburg the following:

The official examination of the alleged case of the ers, which a few days ago was reported from Schiff-beck, near Hamburg, has shown that the case has ab-solutely nothing to do with cholers, and that the whole airam was fasse. There was no excitement in Ham-burg: besides, Schiffbeck is not at the gate of the city, but some distance away in the Prussian province of Schleawig-Hoisteiu.

This is another of the numerous occurrences where interested parties have spread reports about Hamburg which have afterward proved to be grossly exagger-ated or entirely without foundation.
